

From Surviving to Thriving PUGET SOUND 20/20: Creating Sustainable, Resilient Organizations and Communities for Our Future

A Future Search Event Led by Marvin Weisbord and Sandra Janoff

The Pacific NW Organizational Development Network with the Organizational Systems Renewal Program at Seattle University and LIOS Graduate College of Saybrook University, are proud to present an opportunity to come together and visualize the future of Puget Sound to lead the region toward sustainability and prosperity. We are looking for people who want to take a stand and collaborate for a better future for our organizations and communities, this event will create the foundation for our preferred future.

The Context: Coming out of the Great Recession we are faced with adaptive challenges and lack a clear road map to the future. The Pacific NW Organizational Development Network is convening this Future Search Event to bring people together and identify new opportunities to create our future through the power of collaboration. We want to answer this question:

As Puget Sound citizen leaders how do we collaboratively build organizations and communities that thrive in an environment of constant change and turbulence?

Within this backdrop, the Pacific NW Organizational Development Network is hosting a 2 ½ day Future Search Event to create a dialogue about the Future of the Puget Sound Region. Future Search is a large-scale planning meeting that helps people to assess challenges, identify opportunities, and transform their capacity for collective action. Through lively dialogue and sharing experiences and perspectives, participants discover common ground for future action.
